If personal correspondence that you send us, including but not limited to, emails or letters, or if other users or third parties send us correspondence about your activities or postings on the Website, we may collect such information into a file specific to you in order to monitor your activity in detail.

Sharing of personal information

We may share personal information with our other corporate entities and affiliates for a variety of reasons including fraud detection, identity theft, illegal activities as well as preventing abuse of our services. We may disclose personal information to judicial or government authorities if required to do so by law. We also reserve the right to forward your information to enforcement agencies if we have reason to believe that doing so will protect our or our affiliates' rights, property or personal safety of our users or the general public.

We and our affiliates may share or sell some or all of your personal information with another business entity in case we (or our assets) undergo reorganization, restructuring or amalgamation or a merger or acquisition with another business entity. In such a case, the resulting entity or entities will be required to follow this Privacy Policy with respect to your personal information.

Cookies

A "cookie" is a small piece of information stored by a web server on a web browser so it can be later read back from that browser. Cookies are useful for enabling the browser to remember information specific to a given user. We may place temporary as well as permanent cookies on your computer's hard drive. The cookies do not contain any of your personally identifiable information. These "cookies" help us analyze our web page flow, measure promotional effectiveness, and promote trust and safety. Certain features are only available through the use of a "cookie". We also use cookies to enable you to enter your password less frequently during a session. Cookies can also help us provide information that is targeted to your interests. Most cookies are "session cookies," meaning that they are automatically deleted from your hard drive at the end of a session. You are free to decline our cookies as permitted by your browser which may result in you being denied certain features of the website or being forced into entering your password more often during a session.

We do not control the use of cookies by third parties which may be placed on your hard drive.

Links to Other Sites

Our website may have links to other websites that may collect personally identifiable information about you. Navitus Education or its affiliates or partners cannot be held responsible for the privacy practices or the content of these linked websites.

Security Measures

We have stringent security measures to protect your information and make every reasonable effort to protect the loss, misuse, and alteration of the information under our control. Any information in our possession is given the best possible security measures including our adherence to strict security guidelines and protection against unauthorized access.

Advertisements on iAthena.com

Although we make very minimal use of third party advertisements, from time to time we may use third-party advertising companies to serve advertisement that we believe will provide you with relevant information when you visit our website. These companies may use information (not including your name, address, email address, or telephone number) about your visits to this and other websites in order to provide advertisements about goods and services that they believe may be of interest to you.

Implied Consent

By using the website and/or by providing your information, you consent to the collection and use of the information you disclose on the Website in accordance with this Privacy Policy, including but not limited to your consent for sharing your information as per this privacy policy. Any changes to this Privacy Policy will be posted on this page in order to keep you updated on the information we collect, how we use it, and under what circumstances we may disclose it and to whom.
